Here's a snippet of just ONE of the ways to rid yourself of your debt:

This is a basic rule with banks, pension funds and insurance firms. The aim is to have assets available when they will be needed. So one should not finance a long-term asset, for instance a house, with a short-term loan from a credit card. One should not use the value of his or her home to pay the bill. Borrowing long-term for a short-term also calls for trouble. For example, if you take a 10-year loan for a second hand car, you'll still be paying for the loan long after the car has been disposed.

Also included are topics on...

- Strategies of managing debt
- How to prioritize your debt payments
