Introduction: One Dark Halloween Night was first an audio book, aired before thousands, and it remains one of our most popular Halloween radio shows - ever! * * * (Radio show host - Brian Hunter's introduction follows.) "Before we begin, a little bit of information you may find interesting. Although the story you are about to hear is fiction, it is based upon actual, mysterious and unexplained sightings of something very strange in our Texas skies that - for lack of a better word, we'll call birds. Some people think they're throwbacks from the Cretaceous Period, and are related to ancient Pterodactyls; while others believe they are the Thunderbirds of Native American Indian lore, which are often carved in their Totem Poles, and depicted in their Native American Indian dances. The truth is - no one knows what they are; but for one Texas farmer and his cow, there is little doubt of their existence. Lends new meaning to the term - when cows fly . . . Or, is that pigs? Can never remember. Oh well, I know I'm keeping one eye on the sky. How about you? Oh, dear, now I'm scared. Who writes this stuff? I have no idea, but I'd better let you get to the story before I get fired. So - if you're ready, I give you - One Dark Halloween Night, narrated by Emma Brown." * * * In this compilation of fact based stories and documentation - One Dark Halloween Night . . . leads the way, and sets the stage for some of the best 'Spooky Literature' ever committed to paper - keeping alive Lyn's love of Classic Literature, which she brings to you just as it was written (except for occasional lite editing where needed). When you've finished reading, Lyn even feeds you - by including some of her favorite ghoulish recipes, picked especially for the trick-or-treat season - that also work for any gathering, when chills are expected to surface. If you're not careful - you just might learn something you didn't know . . . Lyn is known to hide little bits of wisdom between the pages. As always, Lyn's goal is to enlighten and entertain, so - sit back, grab your favorite snack, and Enjoy!
