People (A book of quotes and comments about the different attitudes of people) Renard Gresham

"People" (A book of quotes and comments about the different attitudes of people) remind us that words have the ability to change one's thinking, attitude, behavior, view, outlook, passion, opinion, and life itself. Consider the great philosophers of the past such as Confucius who said, "Respect yourself and others will respect you" or Heraclitus, who cried, "Character is destiny!" Although these men are long gone, their proverbial expressions live on in the hearts of people everywhere and their philosophies are being factored everyday in the lives of many. These statements have made a profound effect on the minds of those who have chosen to apply them. This is precisely why "People" (A book of quotes and comments about the different attitudes of people) is to make you think on a more practical level, to make you step back and examine, "Who Am I?" "Do I like the way I am?" "Do I need to change?" or "Am I okay with who I am?" Every quote contains the word people in it to make it more personal and relative.

"People" will activate, awaken, and adjust areas in your life that need change. It will challenge you one on one by steering you in the direction of self-examination and exploration. So often, we see other things around us that need change, when in reality the change needs to start within us. Remember: "You'll never achieve outward stability, until you find inward security."

With that in mind, you will find you in this book, "People." Whether you read the book in the morning, at lunch or just in your "quiet space," take the opportunity to see the WORDS as you have never seen them before . . . with life, conviction, hope, and peace!
